DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

PRESENT APPEARANCE:

two chimneys of early 19th century vintage standing in some woods to the west of the road leading to the [now defunct] Redden Ferry on Wicomico Creek. Each chimney has two fireplaces with jack arches on the first floor and each has one fireplace on the second floor (also with jack arches ~~on the~~ ^{flat}) on opposite sides (see plan). Other than the chimneys the site is completely covered with undergrowth. There are some foundations under the growth, but the outline can't be traced unless it is all cutback. Part of a brick was recovered from the foundations ^{← near to west chimney} and two from the eastern chimney.

This would have been a ^{very} large house before it was destroyed, probably by fire.
